

Whatsoever He Saith unto You, Do It

Elder L. Whitney Clayton

The trial of our faith will always involve staying true to simple, daily practices of faith. Then, and only then, does He promise that we will receive the divine response for which we long. Only once we have proven our willingness to do what He asks without demanding to know the whens, the whys, and the hows do we "reap the rewards of [our] faith, and [our] diligence, and patience, and long-suffering." Real obedience accepts God's commandments unconditionally and in advance.

www.MyHappyTribe.com

Whatsoever He Saith unto You, Do It

Elder L. Whitney Clayton

The trial of our faith will always involve staying true to simple, daily practices of faith. Then, and only then, does He promise that we will receive the divine response for which we long. Only once we have proven our willingness to do what He asks without demanding to know the whens, the whys, and the hows do we "reap the rewards of [our] faith, and [our] diligence, and patience, and long-suffering." Real obedience accepts God's commandments unconditionally and in advance.

www.MyHappyTribe.com

Whatsoever He Saith unto You, Do It

Elder L. Whitney Clayton

The trial of our faith will always involve staying true to simple, daily practices of faith. Then, and only then, does He promise that we will receive the divine response for which we long. Only once we have proven our willingness to do what He asks without demanding to know the whens, the whys, and the hows do we "reap the rewards of [our] faith, and [our] diligence, and patience, and long-suffering." Real obedience accepts God's commandments unconditionally and in advance.

www.MyHappyTribe.com